

To whom this may concern,

My name is Hortense Taylor. I am a student here at BC. And I attended the EODAC meeting on last Tuesday. And from the moment that I walked into the room I saw a few of the faculty's faces, and I felt very uncomfortable. As an African American student, I felt that our safety and education here on campus was not important to a few people inside of the room. I also felt that if I went to register for any of those professors' classes that I would fail in the classes because of the color of my skin.
