

Trends in course success rates, current institution-set standards, and proposed institution-set standards

Trends in course success rates over the past five years compared to current institution-set standards (ISS) and proposed institution-set standards. Note that Online course success rates and CTE course success rates have experienced an upward trend over the past four years, warranting consideration of a higher ISS in these areas. By contrast, the trend in overall course success rates (in red in the figure below) is largely flat.

